WAS A GREAT CIRCUS.

People Much Pleased With the Ringling Brothers' Big Show—Large and Enthusiastic Audiences—A Great Display in all Respects.

A large number of people of New Haven yesterday had the pleasure of witnessing one of the very best circus performances that has ever been given in this city. It is estimated that fully 8,000 people were at the afternoon performance, and there was even a larger number present in the evening. The street parade, which took place in the morning, was viewed by at least 1,000 people as it passed down Elm street by the green, and was one of the longest circus parades ever given in this city, as well as the most gorgeous. There were gilded wagons and chariots, the usual number of cages of wild animals, bands, steam calliope, chimneys, elephants, dromedaries and two of the proverbial clowns, who were followed by about fifty small boys and provoking no end of fun and amusement in the onlookers. The leading actors of the circus were not compelled to ride on horse back, dressed in gaudy attire, as formerly, but rode in ordinary carriages, presenting a much better appearance than the old form of display. The procession passed through Elm, St. John, Olive and Greene streets, Wooster Place, Chapel street and Sherman avenue, and while it was passing traffic was blocked in the center of the city.

From 1:15 o'clock until the time the performance began Liberty's celebrated band of sixty solo artists gave a concert in which the following selections were played:

March—The Dough Boys, N. Allison
Waltz—Eusebio Seductor, Rosas
Selection—Die Fledermaus, Strauss
Hungarian Melody—Czardas, Brahms
Cornet Solo—Belle of the West, Liberatori
Singer A. Liberatori.

American Fantasia, Bendis
In the evening at 7:15 o'clock the following program was rendered:

Grand March, Liberatori
Waltz—Musical Scenes from Switzerland, Langley
Golden Jodeln, Ellenberg
Cornet solo—Souvenir de la Suisse, Liberatori
Singer A. Liberatori.
Reminiscences of All Nations, Godfrey
The name of Liberatori is enough to show the music must have been of a high order of excellence, but to be in any measure appreciated it must have been heard. Signor Liberatori's solos were especially worthy of praise. Liberatori is well known as one of the foremost band leaders in the country, and Ringling Brothers are to be congratulated as well as praised for having attached such an eminent musician to his circus.

The circus performance proper began at 2 o'clock promptly. Al Ringling acted as equestrian director. The first event was the grand opening tournament in the rings and upon the hippodrome track. It was truly a gorgeous spectacle, and one calculated to inspire the beholder with wonder and admiration. The event concluded with a series of artistic groupings on the revolving pedestal by Charles and Marie Neville. In the second event the Japanese occupied all three rings. A Kimo-to and son went through with unique Japanese ladder specialties. Fizo and Tam gave a novel oriental perch act. Karato gave Oriental originalities in high class contortions. Okeo ascended a Japanese pyramidal ladder on razor-sharp swords, which was a very wonderful performance. The thrilling slide for life from the dome of the amphitheater by Yecomite was marvelous. Oudora and Kickamonte then gave a wonderful exhibition of foot balancing ladders. The expert exhibitions on the aerial bars by the Brothers Murilla surpassed anything in that line which has ever yet been seen in this city. Adams gave a marvelous display of muscular endurance. Lamothe and Maynard also went through some very interesting high class aerial bar performances. Then came the bare-back riding in the two end rings, M'le Elena, the queen of equestriennes, being in one, and Senora Julia Lowandi, Spain's favorite equestrienne, occupying the attention of those at the other end of the tent. The clowns, five in number, caused no end of amusement, by their funny antics and pranks. Lee Ingham then gave an exhibition of muscular eccentricities on the lofty poised pyramids, and Joe Lewis, the human enigma, gave an example of unique serpentine posing. Miss Ida Miao and George Zammet went through with novel and difficult feats of finished contortion. Then came the long distance and somersault leaping over elephants, camels and other obstacles by an especially selected company of leapers, acrobats and clowns. Some of the jumps and leaps were truly wonderful. One acrobat turned three and one half somersaults at one jump, and was the only one who turned as many. Mr. Rooney then exhibited an extraordinary display of equine intelligence by showing to the audience several high bred educated horses. Mons. Natalie then exhibited his trained pigs, and the Brothers LaRue gave an interesting exhibition of novel acrobaticism.

Then came the performance of the wonderful Eddy family, England's greatest quartet of specialists. The feats they performed were wonderful. The family consists of two brothers and two sisters. They were in full dress suits and the ladies had on ordinary afternoon dresses. Yet these unassuming they went through with most marvelous and difficult feats of ability and acrobaticism. The youngest sister turned somersaults with surprising swiftness. They formed pyramids and performed other difficult feats. The Brothers Arden gave some very wonderful and ingenious acrobatic feats. Miss Leon, Miss Showers, Miss West and Miss D'Alma then went through with graceful feats of equilibrium on the high wire. Their exhibition was unsurpassed in the line by anything ever seen here before.

The great Dracos, Lewis, Marie and Fancion then gave the most thrilling astonishing and danger-defying aerial flights ever attempted. This was probably the most exciting feature of the whole circus and won rounds of hearty applause. The Landauers, a troupe of nine flexible models, then gave an exhibition of posing that was highly creditable and Julian and Valetta Ty Bell gave most wonderful feats of difficult balancing on lofty ladders. The regular hippodrome races concluded the circus.

Should Ringling Brothers ever come this way again they will undoubtedly be greeted by an immense throng.

ONE RIVER'S THREE NAMES.

Why the Las Animas is Also Called the Purgatorio and the Picket Wire.
[From the Washington Evening Star.]
"Some queer kinks in nomenclature are discoverable in this country of ours," said Colonel William Stapleton of Trinidad, Col. "Running right through the town of Trinidad, in which I live, is a little river, which familiarly and indiscriminately does its muddy, flowing business under three names. It is called variously the Las Animas, the Purgatorio, and the Picket Wire. The names came about in this way: "Santa Fe, N. M., claims to be as old as the same age as St. Augustine, Fla. Both towns are considerably over three hundred years old, although I forget the exact date of their settlement."

"Back in the middle of the sixteenth century the Spaniards at Santa Fe made up a military detachment to go overland to St. Augustine. The old Dons didn't know anything of the country which lay between. All they were posted on was the distance and the general direction, as they knew the latitude and longitude of both places. Rather late in the fall some seven hundred of them, steel-clad soldiers, camp followers, baggage train and women pushed in through the Raton Pass over the trail now followed by the Santa Fe railroad, and at what is now the site of Trinidad which sits fairly in the mouth of the Raton Canon, looking out on the plains."

"There they were on the very threshold of the Rockies. To the east of them, over which their course must trend, lay an utter waste of plains, apparently without limit. All that winter the Spaniards camped in the mouth of Raton Canon. With wife, woman and song they put in a miserable time, and probably had as much fun as they ever had before or since. Winters are not rigorous and spring comes early in the vicinity of Trinidad."

"With the first coming of the early grass the adventurers burnished their armor, fitted up their horses, and got ready to move. The camp followers, the women and the extra baggage they sent back to Santa Fe. When last they the party bound for St. Augustine, numbering several hundred, were marching down the valley of the little river by which they had camped."

"That was the last ever heard of them. Not a feather ever floated back to tell the story of their fate. With the last flap of the banner, and the last sun-glint on the rearmost steel cap, they disappeared from the earth. To this day no one is able to make a suggestion even as to what became of them, except that it is supposed they were butchered by the Indians."

"Fifty years ago there was an old Comanche chief named Iron Shirt, because of a rusty old shirt of chain mail which he wore, but neither he nor any of the other Comanches knew anything of the origin of the garment nor where it came from. It had been in the tribe further back than the short Comanche memory could reach. Many have supposed that it was a relic of the Spanish expedition of three centuries ago, which had apparently marched off the earth that far away spring day in the mouth of the Raton Canon."

"But now for the kink in the nomenclature I was thinking of. The disappearance of the Spanish soldiers seemed so eerie and witch-like that it made a profound impression on the superstitious people they had left behind. They named the little river Rio de las Animas, meaning the River of the Lost Souls, and it is supposed to hold the story of the expedition's dark fate and repeat it to itself in the river language, which the Mexicans do not pretend to understand."

"When the French fur traders under Sublette and Saint Vrain came trapping in those waters from St. Louis, in a French effort at translation they made out the 'River of the Lost Souls' must mean the Purgatorio river, and so gave the river the translated name of Purgatorio."

"Later, when the American bull-whacker marched through on his way to Santa Fe, he noticed the French name, but called it Picket Wire. To this day the river wears all three titles, as the reader would soon learn by turning to the Trinidad newspapers, where he would find cattle brands advertised as having their ranges variously on the Las Animas, the Purgatorio and the Picket Wire."

"Every man picks out his name for himself, but this means the same river. It isn't much of a river either, only about twenty feet wide at Trinidad. The Mexicans, however, loyally stick to the name 'Rio de las Animas,' and Mexican mothers tell their children of the soldiers who hundreds of years ago marched from there and were never heard of again."

EPPS'S COCOA.

BREAKFAST-SUPPER.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided for our breakfast and supper a delicately flavored beverage, which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."
